

- ASP Mission -
Alternative sentencing provides the courts with an option at sentencing to punish without destroying,
to rehabilitate without the negative harmful effects of incarceration. Alternative sentencing also protects the offender's family from the negative impacts of incarceration

Mission Statement

The Aleph Institute is a non-profit Jewish religious, educational, and humanitarian organization offering services to imprisoned men and women and their families.
No one alone, no one forgotten.

Program Requirements

- Participants must show remorse for their past behavior and sincere interest and motivation to become a productive member of society.
- Participants must be ready to work with community/faith leaders to change for the better.
- Participants must be willing to be in the program for 18 months and agree to comply with program requirements.

Rehabilitative tools,
make for a more productive individual
and a safer, healthier society

The Participants will agree to:

- A) Weekly meetings with their pastor/rabbi/lay leader, designed to lead the participant toward a more meaningful and reformed life, avoiding actions that are associated with destructive behavior.
- B) Community service weekly, at a local non-profit, with the goal of being a productive member of society.
- C) Employment retention, although a challenging feat during the pre-sentencing stage, due to uncertainty about the future. However, the participant will meet with career counseling agencies with the goal of obtaining employment.
- D) Working with a mentor who can provide support, guidance and direction.
- E) Meeting monthly with the ASP program leader who oversees the progress of the program and provides monthly reports on each participant to the court.

Program Overview:

ASP is designed as a collaborative effort among social service agencies, local faith-based organizations, business partners, foundations, and US parole. We intend to work with individuals from all faith backgrounds to provide a holistic approach to alternative sentencing.

The participant (offender) is interviewed and accepted into the program after agreeing to change their life habits and agreeing to become a productive member of society.
